

Emma Kehoe

Call to Bar: 1991

Emma Kehoe is senior junior, called to the bar in 1991, who specialises in serious crime.

Emma started her career at the independent bar before joining the CPS advocate team where she spent several years dealing with serious crime as a Cat 4 Prosecutor and a member of the Rape and Serious Sexual Offences Panel.

Emma has a reputation for prosecuting, at a very high standard, the most serious offences including Murder & Manslaughter, Drug Conspiracies, Death By Dangerous Driving and the most serious sexual offending. She is widely considered as being one of the leading regional senior juniors in Homicides and Sexual Offences. She is a highly skilled trial advocate and is extremely personable which has meant that she has always been able to get the best from victims and witnesses. These skills are now also being applied to her work with defendants in her rapidly expanding defence practice.

Emma can communicate well with all, whether that be a High Court Judge, vulnerable defendants, witnesses and victims, clients from all backgrounds and juries. She makes herself heard, understood and respected by all making her a very popular choice in all areas of Criminal Practice.

Emma grasps legal and evidential issues quickly and can respond clearly and effectively. Often called upon to advice in the most serious cases where death has occurred and/or complex expert evidence forms part of the case. She has significant experience in interacting with coroners and frequently represented the CPS in these cases where charges were authorised. Her empathy with deceased families along with her reputation as a tenacious and persuasive advocate make her a popular choice to instruct in the most difficult and high-profile cases.

Since joining chambers in 2023, Emma has been able to transfer all the skills she has acquired over the last 20 years as she returns to her roots of defending. She has already secured the only acquittal in a 20 handed violent disorder and has earned praise from the local judiciary for the quality of her mitigation.

Category 3 Prosecutor CPS

Emma has experience doing HM Customs and Exercise work appearing in the Criminal Courts, Tax Tribunals as well as condemnation proceedings. She has appeared in Family Courts at disclosure hearings often contested and has an ability to easily transfer her skills to the requirements of other areas

Emma offers a personal touch whilst being professional to the core which together with her wealth of experience makes for an outstanding service level being provided to private clients who she regularly represents, in the Magistrates and Crown Courts, in offences across the criminal spectrum.

Emma is extremely popular member of the Northern Circuit and has had many pupils who have gone on to practice both in chambers and at the CPS. She recently began to train police officers on how to conduct ABE interviews along with the DCCP of the Northwest RASSO unit as she felt this was an area that needed development. She is also part of a pilot scheme which has attracted national interest which involves advocates conducting such interviews.
